Enrico Guiraud ^[1]

Biography:

Enrico Guiraud is currently pursuing his master's degree in Statistical Mechanics at the Department of Physics of Milan, Italy. He attained his bachelor's degree in physics at the same institute in 2013. He is also actively cultivating his passion for computer science and programming: during the course of 2014, Enrico worked as a system administrator for his university department and as a freelance software developer. As an Openlab Summer Student, he is working on ROOT, CERN's C++ data analysis framework: he is developing a new ROOT module that provides a simple interface to parallel processing facilities.
