Today, CERN openlab is holding its annual ?Collaboration Board? meeting. The event sees representatives of the companies and research institutes collaborating in CERN openlab come to CERN to review the progress made last year and discuss plans for the future. Find out more about our work in the latest CERN openlab annual report ^[3], published today.

Also, you can read an opinion piece by Fabiola Gianotti, the CERN Director-General, about the importance of CERN openlab?s work here ^[4]. ?For 15 years, this unique public-private partnership has worked to ensure that members of CERN?s scientific community have access to the very latest ICT solutions to help them carry out their challenging physics research,? writes Gianotti. ?I would like to thank each of the companies collaborating in CERN openlab ? as well as, most importantly, the people themselves ? for their terrific efforts in supporting CERN?s work.?
