Summer Internships Internships

Is it possible to do a internship program while doing an undergraduate course? If it's possible what are the necessary steps that I should do?

I'd like to do the internship outside India. I've planned to do the internship program during the end of 3rd year in the subject related to information system security or cyber security!!

Yes. For me, I would recommend CERN:

- summer internship (the deadlines for this year are over, you need to apply for next year, 2017):
  - Studentships in Summer \(Non Member State Nationals\)
  - CERN openlab Summer Student Programme
- 4–12 months internship:
  - Technical Student Programme

It is surprising that in such a “highly physics-oriented” lab such as CERN, computer scientists are in high demand!

I personally knew a couple interns at the computer security team (smart students, they could easily be hackers). Moreover, Sebastien, the deputy security officer is really smart and entertaining guy: Computer Security in 2016: Where are we and what to expect

Check out also my other answers regarding CERN, they should be helpful.

Good luck and let me know if you get there ;-)

Yes, ofcourse. Personally I have interned virtually twice, once in my second year and once in my third year of college.

There are many startup companies that offer virtual internships. I'd encourage you to try applying to them through intermediate websites like internshala, letsintern etc. Or you could directly reach out to the company, they would have their contact details on their website.

As far as your internship abroad is concerned, this would give you an experience which could help you get noticed when you apply for companies abroad.

Hope this helps.

All the best.

Of course not. Even Donald Trump doesn't believe he can keep his campaign promises. In fact, as another answer noted, over 70% of his supporters plan to vote for him despite not believing that he can keep them. Part of the problem is that many of his promises are literally impossible to keep. Another part is that he often contradicts himself and makes mutually exclusive promises. And for most of

I qualify as "the left". And the answer is no. I feel that the ACA was a giant let-down because it was cobbled together in some horribly deceptive manner. I don't love his waffling on foreign policy issues. But on the whole, presidents have things they succeed at and fail at. I think he's been an okay guy, more redeeming qualities than his direct predecessor and most other people who get t...

No more than she is of Sarah Palin, who actually has served in a public office for a little while. Fiorina is a lightweight with a poor record as a businesswoman and none at all as a government official. Besides, presidential candidates don't debate vice-presidential ones.
