"With Oracle GoldenGate 12c, we have seen a performance increase of over 50% compared to Oracle Streams on the same hardware," said CERN openlab researcher Lorena Lobato.

"We were able to complete our migration from Oracle Streams deployments to Oracle GoldenGate without any Oracle," added Lobato.

GoldenGate 12c allows Oracle Active Data Guard users to capture data from the standby systems, and GoldenGate revalidation for out-of-sync data.

"Real-time data integration is a critical enabling technology for organisations that want to get more and faster value from their data deployed in diverse and hybrid cloud environments," said Oracle vice president of product management.

"By continuously broadening Oracle GoldenGate's support for non-Oracle databases, deepening integration with Oracle databases, and enhancing integration capabilities, we're helping customers to easily and cost-effectively achieve pervasive, continuous access to their data."
